RESULTS OF ABSOLUTISM.

The late disturbance in Russia among the students has been repressed for a time and peace in that quarter is again upon the surface of events, but it is impossible to learn how long quiet upon the face of public feeling will remain as general dissatisfaction continues to increase among the industrial classes who have engaged in the more advanced modes of western people by making their complaints known through strikes conducted in a more orderly way than has been the custom under absolute rule.

Strikes are in progress in all the chief cities in the Empire, which do not receive the attention which has been given that class of disturbance in former times, as they are now conducted in a more orderly manner, but it is claimed that the effect of these strikes conducted as they are, under absolute rule as administered in ancient form is tending to more liberal government.

These strikes, like the student riots, are deemed by those who understand the industrial situation to be a manifestation of a new spirit that has taken hold upon the Russian people, which must receive attention through concession or it may end in revolution which may close the rule of the present dynasty.

The most advanced in their ideas among the ministers respecting reform are taking a rational view of the situation and are moving in the right direction to meet the requirement of the times, which is a better and a more liberal system of government.

M. De Witte, minister of finance, is tending to a more liberal system and as a consequence of his more liberal ideas he is in opposition to Mr. Pobillonostzeff, procurator of the holy synod, who caused Tolstol to be excommunicated. Pobillonostzeff, seems to be an unreasonable, brutal person who could not take in a thought that would tend to relief were it necessary to save the Empire.

M. De Witte does not hesitate to say that Pobillonostzeff's treatment of the students at Kieff was stupid and brutal which statement is looked upon by those who know the situation of the ministers in the Czar's household as very significant respecting the future of the Czar's government.

The student riots and the strikes among factory workers and among workers in other industries going forward in the Empire are remarked in the capitals of western Europe as arising from the same cause and partake of a like nature.

These public movements are taken to mean and to include a demand for reform. The oriental system of government which has prevailed in Russia is not in line with advanced thought in the Empire, which is known to the more intelligent as well as more liberal among the Czar's ministers, who favor reform.

These ministers are engaged in devising ways and means to effect a change favorable to modes of government in western Europe, which will in time take the form of a representative system which can be secured in a manner that will perpetuate the dynasty, but if reform is not secured in a peaceable way, it will be secured through force, which will destroy the dynasty, as government in the event of forcible revolution will be given a republican form.

England's prime minister wrote fifteen months ago that "liberty was making progress slowly." It is proper to presume he had the Boer war in South Africa in mind when he wrote, "liberty is making progress slowly." Mr. Salisbury was so much engaged in a work to destroy republican government that he could not see the signs of the time beyond the sphere of his immediate action, in suppressing a desire of a free people to govern themselves.

THE NEXT Attraction.

The Reno Vaudeville Company, composed of twenty-five of the best vocalists in the city will hold the boards at McKissick's Opera House on the 28th of this month. These young men have been engaged in practicing for some time and will present a performance that will be up to professional work. The work will be something of a minstrel nature but will be put on the stage in a new and unique manner and in a way that is entirely original.

The very best talent in the town is included in the combination and those who attend the show may rest assured of hearing some singing that would do the heart good. Aside from this, many new little specialties will be worked in that will be in every way pleasing. A full orchestra has been secured and they are practicing daily with the company and unless something out of the ordinary occurs, one of the best amateur shows of the year will result.

The company proposes to play all the surrounding towns and their advance agent is now out securing dates, advertising, etc.

GENTLE JOSHES.

Stories That Are Told About Reno Miners and Prospectors.

Punched his meal ticket—A hard luck story is told on Tom Deegan's recent Gamdoodle of Moop, which place is the metropolis of Granite Hill. Whether the story be true or not, this denoneth wotteth not.

It is said that Tom's divvy from the last carload of Go Down ore was $105. He started in to see the elephant, first making a very wise investment of the odd $5 in a meal ticket.

The hundred he put on the green cloth to let it grow. Luck was against the Granite Hill miner and the croupier soon had his last buck.

"Well, I've got my meal ticket left any way," remarked the gold digger as he drew the precious piece of paste-board from his vest pocket. It accidentally dropped from his fingers and before he could regain it a prospector from Bryan City casually stepped on it with a hob-nail boot and deftly perforated every section of the card that was negotiable for an eat.

Deegan was compelled to leave immediately for Pyramid to work out a grub stake. ANOTHER STRIKE—"Chloride" Thompson is still getting "traces" and looking forward to the time when he will have the full set of harness. He struck a new formation yesterday and it looked good enough to celebrate on, but to make sure, he sent it to Oille Perry to be assayed. Imagine his chagrin when the following returns reached him last evening:

"A ton of rock similar to the sample submitted would carry 2000 pounds of silicate of aluminum and silicate of sodium, commonly called feldspar, which is a very valuable substance to throw at coyotes. I also detected several promising streaks of novelty running through the sample. Your ore will run $100 a ton in assessment work and with depth may be reasonably expected to maintain its values unless the lead widens or you strike a 'horse' that was buried by the sanitary committee."

ORGANIZATION EXTENDING.

The Washoe County Liquor Dealers' Protective Association, which was recently organized in this city, has been extended to Wadsworth. Secretary Carroll is in receipt of letters from different sections of Nevada asking that the association be extended to make it a State organization.

PUPILS OF THE HIGH SCHOOL ARE GRADUATED

A milestone on the road to learning was passed last evening by seventeen young graduates. They received the credentials that they had completed the course of instruction at the Reno High School.

The commencement exercises were held in the McKittrick Opera House, which was decorated for the occasion. A large audience filled the building.

The address of the evening was delivered by Principal Caine of the Wadsworth schools. It was a masterly effort. He reviewed the condition of the State, its past prosperity and depression, drawing therefrom practical lessons for the young. He discussed the effect of public school education on the masses, holding it to be the most important factor in our national history.

Comparing the appropriations made in different countries for the support of public schools, he showed that we expend per capita nearly 100 per cent more on education than even Germany.

Reviewing High School Courses of Study, he showed the relative importance of each group of studies, holding all essential to a well rounded public school education. He explained the educational and practical values of each group, showing himself to be thoroughly familiar with all the details of High School work, as well as with the practical trend which education is now taking.

Professor Caine is a thorough going American, a worthy product of our public school and college systems, and stands today, easily, the ablest educated and the most up-to-date man of the many good men our State University has sent out. To say that he ranks among the first educators of our State, is but to do him simple justice, and if he keeps on in his present progressive ideas work he will, in a few years, easily lead all.

Throughout his address, of about 30 minutes, he received the closest attention of the immense audience crowded into the Opera House, and was liberally applauded both before and after his address.

The young people who spoke all covered themselves and the High School with glory. Miss Greely, Miss Maxwell, Mr. Pike, Jr. and Miss Newmarker.

A JUNE WEDDING.

Sun Smiles on a Fair Bride—The Unsworth-Ryan Nuptials.

The Episcopal Church was the scene yesterday afternoon of one of the prettiest weddings ever celebrated in Reno. Charles Ryan of Nebraska City, led to the altar, Miss Edith Unsworth, daughter of Samuel Unsworth, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church of this place. The church was handsomely decorated with palms and cut-flowers. Promptly at 5 o'clock, as the pipe organ, presided over by Mrs. Alice Layton, pealed forth the strains of "Lohengrin's" wedding march the bridal party entered. A very effective and novel feature was the entrance of the five bridesmaids from the vestry. Miss Vera Novacovich and Miss Laura Orr leading, Miss Elizabeth Evans alone, followed by Miss Bessie McCormack and Miss Sadie Phillips. Passing down the large center aisle they were met by the ushers who passed around them taking the lead. As the maids turned into place the bride entered with her brother, Ceby, preceded by the maid of honor, Miss Elizabeth Webster, and the flower girl and ring bearer, all advanced to the altar where the groom was in waiting with his best man. The ceremony was performed by the bride's father.

After the bride and groom had received the blessing, the choir of which Mrs. Ryan had been a member, sang softly to the music of "Lohengrin's" bridal chorus. During the singing, rose leaves, from a basket over head, were showered by the maid of honor upon the kneeling couple. This June gift of sweet perfume and the smiling sun bestowed their benediction.

The maids were all gowned in pink or orange, the flower girl, little Miss Hannah Unsworth, in white and the ring bearer, little Miss Mildred Wheeler, in pink. The maid of honor carried bride's roses, the bridesmaids, pink and white carnation.

The beautiful blonde bride was a picture in her exquisite silvery gown and long veil. She carried a large bouquet of white carnations. Her gown was a confection of the sheerest white organdie over Duchesse satin. At her throat she wore a sunburst of pearls and sapphires, a gift of the groom.

Mrs. Ryan is one of Reno's loveliest and most accomplished young ladies. She has a rare alto voice and was educated at the Nevada State University, Nebraska City, will gain a prize while Reno again loses.

Mr. Ryan, you are congratulated by Reno's people though they are loath to part with your bride. Mr. Ryan is a well known railroad man of Nebraska.

The best man was Warren Wheeler, a cousin of the groom. The ushers were: David Ward, George Wilson, Joe Hall and Fred Julien.

Among the out of town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Ryan, parents of the groom, Miss Fannie McDougal and aunt, Mrs. E. Torket and aunt of the bride.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the rectory, the home of the bride's father, to which the guests were limited to the bridal party, the Guild of Trinity Church, relatives and a few intimate friends.

PLENTY OF BRICK.

Recently an item appeared to the effect that there was a brick famine in Reno and that they had to be imported to keep building operations in progress. It seems that there was error in the item as the Journal was informed yesterday that both Richard Ryland and Burke brothers have been shipping brick from here to Verdi, Winnemucca and other points.

BUILDING OPERATIONS.

Burke brothers are laying the foundations for Jay Clemmons new residence on the south side. They have finished the Trestle building and will commence next week to erect a hand, some home for the bank of Gardnerville. They have eight men employed in their brickyard.
